

NCCER Facilitated Construction Superintendent Certification Program

Now is the time to elevate your construction superintendents with the leadership, business and project management skills they need to succeed.

NCCER's Construction Superintendent Certification Program goes beyond field experience, providing structured training in people management, business acumen and profitability. This turnkey solution allows organizations to invest in their workforce without having to develop their own instruction.

Designed for both current and aspiring superintendents, this online, facilitated program combines independent learning with interactive instruction. Participants complete an online course every two weeks, followed by a live, instructor-led session with a Master Trainer to reinforce key concepts, discuss real-world applications, and collaborate with peers. This structured approach ensures superintendents gain the leadership and business expertise needed to excel in their roles.

The next National Cohort begins May 8th and runs through December 18th.

Participants complete an online course every two weeks, then join a live, instructor-led session at 11:00 AM EST (10:00 AM CST) via Zoom to review and reinforce their learning.

- Facilitated by NCCER Master Trainer Jesse Hernandez
- Topics include leadership, ethics, contracts, risk management, and project closeout
- $3,825 per participant

Meet Your Instructor

Jesse Hernandez has more than 20 years' experience working and mentoring in the construction industry.

Jesse worked as a tradesman before being promoted to superintendent, general superintendent and regional manager of a national general contractor. His greatest passion is improving the lives of professionals working in the construction industry. He teaches project planning, time management, process improvement and communication through his "people-first" instructional style.

In 2017, he earned his NCCER Master Trainer certification, demonstrating his excellence in delivering NCCER curriculum and developing the next generation of skilled craft workers.
